A nonmathematical course describing the concepts, language, methods, history, philosophy, and impact on society of physics. Topics include motion, electricity, light, relativity, and quantum physics with applications to areas such as the energy crisis and nuclear energy.