Guidelines for Documentation of Mobility Disorders

These disorders bring about mobility limitations of the upper and/or lower body. They may occur as a result of accident, progressive neuromuscular diseases, congenital conditions, or repetitive motion stress injuries.

Professionals recommended to provide documentation include general physicians and specialty physicians such as podiatrists, neurologists, rheumatologists, physiatrists, and orthopedic surgeons.

Documentation adequate to establish eligibility for services must include:

- Written statement of diagnosis
- Diagnostic procedures and results, if applicable
- Information regarding current symptoms
- Information regarding restrictions, if any
- Information regarding disorder related functional limitations experienced by the student
- Information regarding prescribed medication(s) and possible side effects on academics

Revised February 2011